MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Industry Overview and Developments

Way back in 1956, Arthur C Clarke, a noted science fiction writer, in a letter described his views of the future, featuring a satellite system 'whereby anyone could locate himself'. In 21st century, the prediction looks blatantly accurate. Irrespective of whether it was a mere forecast or his ability to visualize the importance of Geographical Information System (GIS) services well in advance, there is no denying of the fact that GIS plays an important role in all walks of our modern life including major decision making across industries. Today, GIS is a multi-billion dollar industry with a growth rate of close to 10%.

With a contribution of more than 30% of the industry's annual revenue, Governments have been the major customers of GIS industry. Be it municipalities, defense, national security, infrastructure or governance, dependency of governments on GIS is increasing with every passing day. It provides a better understanding of the spatial phenomenon that occurs around us. Such phenomenon however is complex in nature and requires a vast collection of data; integration of geographic data from different sources therefore is fundamental requirement to analyze and understand the problems that keeps relation with geography in one way or another.

GIS application in the retail sector has witnessed a high growth in the recent years and such a phenomenon indicates that the retailers, in the process, use GIS for monitoring their trade areas, assess competition and position their new stores locations and therefore, use GIS as an important decision making tool as part of their strategy.

Maps, an important component of GIS, possess insightful power for decision-making. Processes like selection of sites / stores locations, distribution, transportation, market analysis, facilities management, entertainment and tourism are highly dependent on GIS data, as it enhances the quality of market analysis, predictive investigations, business modeling, competition, selection of suppliers and the likes.

Consumer market is predominantly driven by the mobile and Internet technologies. With the proliferations of smart phones / tablets / VTS device, there is growing demand for geo data content to aid search, navigation and local commerce.

On the Enterprises side, utilities and infrastructure companies use GIS extensively for major decision-making process in the area of planning, operations and maintenance of field assets.

Government Initiative and GIS Industry in India

The Union Cabinet has approved Central government spending worth Rs 98,000 crore under two new urban missions over the next five years. The Cabinet chaired by Prime Minister Mr. Narendra Modi, cleared the Smart Cities Mission under which 100 smart cities would be built and the Atal Mission for Rejuvenation and Urban Transformation (AMRUT) for 500 cities with outlays of Rs 48,000 crore and Rs 50,000 crore, respectively. Under the Smart Cities Mission, each selected city would get central assistance of Rs 100 crore per year for five years.

E-Governance is the cornerstone of the Smart City Mission. With the Digital India Programme initiative, the Indian Government plans to integrate government departments and citizen services in a seamless manner. This initiative shall ensure an overhaul transparency in the functioning of various government departments as well as timely completion of intended services.

The Highway sector has been allocated nearly 45,000 Crores, twice as much from last year's budget. The National Highway Authority of India (NHAI) has also mandated the use of LiDAR technology in the current year to conduct feasibility studies for all highway projects. Poor feasibility studies have huge repercussions during construction phase of any project. Employing LiDAR technology mitigates such a scenario to a great extent.

The current Budget provides an allocation of Rs. 5,300 crore to support micro-irrigation, watershed development and the Pradhan Mantri Krishi Sinchai Yojana. The India Railway Minister, Mr. Suresh Prabhu in the current union budget stressed the need for digitizing and GIS mapping of the vast land assets owned by the Railways.

With $3 bn in annual revenues and a contribution of 0.2% of India's GDP, The Indian Geospatial services industry has transformed policy planning and implementation and currently is at a pivotal position to drive India's growth in the coming years upwards in an exponential manner.

Projects / initiatives undertaken by Genesys

Genesys has successfully executed various projects belonging to diverse verticals during the year under review. Genesys as a company believes in not limiting itself to a pre-defined operational protocol when it comes to projects that it undertakes. It is for this very reason that each distinct project with its respective individual challenges are met with innovative and path breaking solutions. A few noteworthy mentions out of the numerous projects / initiatives undertakes by Genesys are mentioned below:

Foraying into the heritage field we conducted a geotechnical investigation of a mountainous facade overlying the Religious site in Nashik. This investigation helped demarcate potential hazardous rock fall zones enabling the concerned authorities to take corrective steps preventing the temple located at the foothills from being damaged by a rock fall.

During the year, A UNESCO World heritage site and one of the busiest railway stations in India was mapped by Genesys using LiDAR technology for restoration purposes.

Genesys became the first geospatial company in the world to undertake a detailed LiDAR survey within Slums. Located within the heart of Mumbai, individual houses within the slums were demarcated empowering concerned authorities to fabricate various redevelopment decisions based on the comprehensive data generated by the survey.

Genesys also conducted a detailed topographic survey for a leading government power utility company with one of the main deliverables being potential landslide demarcation zones, which would otherwise hamper the smooth functioning of the government power utility company.

No project is too big a challenge for Genesys and cementing this fact is the project undertaken for the mapping of 1500 road junctions within Mumbai. The main objective was to demarcate strategic positions for installations of CCTV cameras around these junctions.

From the infrastructure vertical point of view Genesys has carried out an integrated topographic and LiDAR survey of a proposed airport runway at Navi Mumbai covering an area of approximately 450 sq. km. We also have undertaken an extensive rail corridor survey for the Railway Authorities of the Indian Government.

The mining vertical has also been explored and met with great success. The main objective of the mining projects was to survey potential untapped mining areas and to cross check the intrusion of forests within these leased areas.

The above stated projects / initiatives give us a brief but a very profound idea of Genesys's capability as a Surveying company. We believe that no matter how daunting a challenge might be, the solution is always achievable. This statement is reflected time and again in the diverse projects that we undertake. We are continually researching into various surveying platforms and surveying methodologies along with upcoming and stateof-the-art technologies so that whenever the need arises we are ready to accomplish any and every challenge with confidence.

Challenges and Opportunities

The need for customized Geospatial solutions, which addresses both the enterprise and government problems, is on the rise. This demand is expected to grow for designing accessible, user friendly and seamless applications that work both online and offline 24/7.

Highly Accurate geospatially captured data is needed by industry specific verticals for purposes ranging from planning and designing to operations and maintenance.

With the advances in various laser scanning and survey platforms, Genesys through various partnerships has a unique advantage to deploy geospatial data collection services both in India and across the globe.

Genesys with its uniquely customized geospatial solutions translates these challenges into 'Real World' working models. Our recent partnership with a European GIS firm has leveraged our ability to provide seamless web based HD pano plus LiDAR integrated GIS solutions across various verticals such as telecom, e-governance, infrastructure, utilities, water management and urban management.
